SDG 16: Peace, Justice, and Strong Institutions

(Promoting Equity and Rule of Law)

At Harcourt Butler Technical University (HBTU), Kanpur, we are deeply committed to fostering an environment of Peace, Justice, and Strong Institutions in alignment with SDG 16. Our approach to promoting peace, justice, and institutional integrity is rooted in transparency, inclusivity, and active engagement with all stakeholders—students, faculty, staff, and the broader community. Through various institutional mechanisms and programs, HBTU aims to build a campus culture that not only upholds the rule of law and justice but also fosters a safe, supportive, and inclusive environment for all.

Institutional Mechanisms for Peace and Justice

1. Dean of Student Welfare (DSW): The Dean of Student Welfare plays a pivotal role in ensuring the overall well-being of students at HBTU. The office serves as a bridge between the administration and the student body, addressing a range of student concerns, from academic grievances to mental health support. The DSW ensures that every student has access to resources and support systems that promote peace, mental well-being, and personal growth. This office actively fosters an inclusive and positive campus environment where every student feels valued and heard.
2. Grievance Redressal Committees: To ensure that issues and grievances are addressed in a fair and transparent manner, HBTU has established Grievance Redressal Committees for students, faculty, and staff. These committees provide a platform for individuals to voice concerns related to academic, administrative, or interpersonal matters. By adhering to a clear and impartial process, the grievance redressal mechanism ensures justice and upholds institutional integrity. The committees ensure that all grievances are handled respectfully and promptly, reinforcing a culture of fairness, accountability, and transparency within the university.
3. Women's Cell: The Women's Cell at HBTU is dedicated to fostering a safe and empowering environment for women on campus. The cell is responsible for addressing issues related to gender discrimination, harassment, and violence, and it actively works to promote gender equality through educational programs, awareness campaigns, and support services. The cell also organizes workshops and seminars on women's rights, self-defense, and legal literacy to empower women students and staff. By providing a space where women can seek help and find support, the Women's Cell plays a key role in creating an environment that supports justice, equality, and peace.
4. Anti-Ragging Committee: HBTU has a strict Anti-Ragging Committee in place to ensure that all students are treated with respect and dignity. The committee works proactively to prevent and address any form of ragging or harassment, ensuring a safe and secure campus for new students. The committee's work fosters a culture of inclusion, respect, and unity, helping to maintain peace and order on campus.
